

DETECTION OF HARDMASK REMOVAL USING A SELECTIVE ETCH

Abstract

A method of creating electrical shorts within an interconnection structure, using a selective etch, to detect a region that is missing a protective hardmask in order to prevent future use of the defective device.